TRACEABILITY TASK FORCE

eID FOR GOAT PRODUCERS

WEBINAR

Everything you need to know about LPA, NVDs, NLIS and eID

This webinar is designed to provide goat producers with an understanding of their requirements around traceability.

As government and industry work together towards a mandatory national traceability system using eID for sheep and goats by 1 January 2025, it is essential goat producers understand their responsibilities when it comes to Livestock Production Assurance, National Vendor Declarations and completing transfers on the National Livestock Identification System database.

Delivered by the Sheep and Goat Traceability Taskforce and hosted in partnership between Integrity Systems Company and the Goat Industry Council of Australia, this webinar is ideal for all goat producers — from dairy to rangeland, regardless of the size of your production system.

Speakers from ISC and GICA will address:

- Why eID is important from a traceability perspective

- What tags can be used and when

- LPA requirements around NVDs

- Producer responsibilities when moving animals on and off property

- Updates to NVDs for harvested rangeland goats

- Live demonstration of property-to-property transfers and other key functions within the NLIS database

We'll also feature a Q&A session with an early adopter of eID technology, goat producer XXXXXXXX, on the benefits they've experienced and some tips as we move towards eID.

To learn more, watch a demonstration of the most common functions on the NLIS database, and hear a successful implementation case study, register now:
